

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus and method to adjust the dimensions of thermoplastic components following passage of the component through final processing in a fixture. The invention particularly relates to an apparatus for maintaining product tolerances on thermoplastic components that have undergone post-form extrusion. In addition, 5 the invention relates to a method for maintaining product tolerances on post-form extruded thermoplastic materials.